

Prof. J. Alberto Aragón Correa

Professor of Management. NGA Talent & Leadership Chair.
University of Granada

Is Professor of Strategy at U. of Granada (Spain) and Honorary Professor of Management at University of Surrey (UK). His research has focused on the multiple relationships between business strategies and natural environment. His analyses has paid a special and pioneer attention to the effects of exogenous factors (e.g. regulation or stakeholders including government) on the corporate proactive environmental approaches and their implications on corporate competitiveness. Alberto has published in multiple top tier journals including Academy of Management Journal, Academy of Management Review, Academy of Management Perspective, Academy of Management Learning and Education, California Management Review, among others. His research has already received more than 7,000 citations and he is one of the most influential scholars in the field of “management and sustainability”. Additionally, he has a strong editorial experience as Chief Editor, Consulting Editor, Special Issue Guest Editor, board member of multiple journals, and book series editor for Cambridge University Press. Alberto received the 2015 Outstanding Services Award from the Academy of Management’s Division on Organizations and Natural Environment after his service as Division Chair, the Academy of Management is the largest international academic organization in the business field.